The History

The University of North Carolina women's soccer program is one of the most successful sport programs in the history of college athletics. In its first 24 years, Carolina has won 17 national championships and played in all 22 national Final Fours sanctioned by the AIAW and NCAA.

Under head coach Anson Dorrance, who began the varsity program in 1979, the Tar Heels have staked a claim as one of the great dynasties in intercollegiate athletics history.

Heading into the 2003 season, the Tar Heels have posted a 532-25-15 record. Carolina won the first official national championship, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) title, in 1981 and has since won NCAA championships in 1982, 1983, 1984, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990, 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1996, 1997, 1999 and 2000. The only five years since 1981 (the year of the first ever championship in the sport) in which the Tar Heels did not win the national crown were 1985 when they lost to George Mason the NCAA championship game, 1995 when they lost to eventual NCAA champion Notre Dame in the NCAA semifinals, 1998 when they fell to Florida in the NCAA championship game, 2001 when Santa Clara beat Carolina in the championship contest and 2002 when they were upset by Santa Clara in the NCAA semifinals.

Carolina's women's soccer program has won 16 NCAA titles, more NCAA Division I women's national championships than any other Division I women's athletics sport program in the nation.

The Tar Heels' 17 total national championships are more than any other sports program has won, men's or women's, in Atlantic Coast Conference history. In addition, UNC women's soccer teams have won 15 of the 16 Atlantic Coast Conference championships decided since league play started in 1987.

Over seventy-five different Tar Heel players in the past 24 years have earned the distinction of being named All-Americans as either first-, second- or third-team choices or honorable mention selections. Eleven players—April Heinrichs, Shannon Higgins, Kristine Lilly, Mia Hamm, Tisha Venturini, Debbie Keller, Staci Wilson, Cindy Parlow, Robin Confer, Lorrie Fair and Meredith Florance—have been named the National Player of the Year. Lori Henry, Shannon Higgins, Kristine Lilly, Mia Hamm, Tisha Venturini, Cindy Parlow and Lorrie Fair have been saluted as the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year. Carolina has had a total of 99 selections to the first- or second-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference squads since the league began sponsorship of the sport in 1987, long outflanking any other league school. UNC has also boasted the Most Valuable Player of the ACC Tournament in 14 of the 15 tournaments held since 1988.

The 1981 Carolina women's soccer team, in only its third varsity year, got the championship fever stirred up in Chapel Hill when it won the first of the University's 17 national crowns in the sport. The Tar Heels claimed the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) national crown by defeating Central Florida 1-0 at Kenan Stadium.

The numbers continue to boggle the mind. Five Tar Heels have been named ACC Rookie of the Year and six have been named National Freshman Player of the Year. Anson Dorrance has been named national coach of the year on five occasions and ACC coach of the year six times.

Still more numbers illustrate the dominance of this program. Eight Carolina women's soccer players have won the Patterson Medal as Carolina's outstanding senior athlete, the latest being Meredith Florance in 2001. The recipient of the Mary Garber Award as the Outstanding Female Athlete of the Year in the Atlantic Coast Conference has been a Tar Heel women's soccer player five times. UNC has had 115 players named as All-Tournament selections at the AIAW or NCAA national tournaments. The Tar Heels have boasted the offensive, defensive or overall Most Valuable Player at the NCAA Tournament 25 times. Fifty-four Tar Heels have been tapped as All-ACC Tournament selections since that honor team was started in 1991.

As anyone can easily see, the numbers simply do not lie. Carolina's women's soccer is all about the pursuit of excellence and it is all about dominance.

Many Carolina players have continued their playing careers as members of the United States National Team. Since the founding of that National Team program by the United States Soccer Federation, a total of 42 different Carolina players have earned caps on the National Team through the 2002 season. Several other former Tar Heels have gone on to play for foreign national teams, including those of Canada, Denmark, The Netherlands, Iceland and Norway. Dorrance is not only the coach of the most successful women's collegiate program in the United States, he is also the chief architect behind the success of the United States Women's National Team, having coached that squad from its second year of existence in 1986 until he stepped down in 1994 to concentrate solely on his duties at North Carolina.

Under Dorrance's brilliant coaching guidance, the United States won the first-ever Women's World Cup Championship in China in November of 1991. Half of the 1991 USA roster, nine of the 18 players, played collegiately in Chapel Hill. Seven players who toiled collegiately at Chapel Hill were on the 1995 USA Team which captured third place at the World Cup Championships. During the summer of 1996, at the Centennial Olympic Games in Athens, Ga., the U.S. roster was filled with Tar Heel connections as the Americans captured the gold medal. Both of the team's assistant coaches and seven of the 16 players were Tar Heels, giving that gold medal a pronounced Carolina Blue tint. In the summer of 1999, eight more UNC players competed for the United States team which recaptured the Women's World Cup title by beating China on penalty kicks in the Rose Bowl. Six more Tar Heels played for the 2000 U.S. Olympic Team which won the silver medal in Sydney, Australia. They were Lorrie Fair, Mia Hamm, Kristine Lilly, Siri Mullinix, Carla Overbeck and Cindy Parlow. The 2000 Olympic Team was coached by UNC alumna April Heinrichs.

Having players compete in the World Cup and the Olympics was hardly a thought when the program first began playing on a varsity level in 1979. The Tar Heels played their first game, a 12-0 win over Duke, on September 20, 1979. The first season saw Carolina compile a 10-2 overall record, losing only twice to a club team, the McLean Grasshoppers. Janet Rayfield, still the Tar Heels' third all-time leading scorer with an amazing 223 points and 93 goals, was the first Carolina superstar. She scored 30 goals in just 12 games in that initial season.

In 1980, the Tar Heels won 21 of 26 games and were again led in scoring by Rayfield, who had 25 goals. Midfielder Nancy Clary became the first Tar Heel player to earn first-team All-America honors during that season.

The 1981 season was an exciting year for the women's college game as the first ever national champion was crowned during a 12-team tournament in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels provided many exciting moments during the course of the season, scoring a school record 172 goals. Led by 36-goal scorer Stephanie Zeh and getting 30 more tallies from Rayfield and 18 scores from Wendy Greenberg, UNC averaged an astounding 7.48 goals per game. Goalkeepers Marianne Johnson and Beth Huber allowed just eight goals in 23 games.

Following a 19-0 regular season and a win over Virginia in the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW)

Fetzer Field in Chapel Hill.

Carolina defeated Massachusetts 6-0, Connecticut 5-0 and Central Florida 1-0 to take the championship. In the title game, the Tar Heels outshot the Golden Knights 30-8, but could score just once, on a Diane Beatty goal off a Kathy Kelly corner kick with 19:36 left in the first half.

The NCAA became the sport's governing body in 1982 and the Tar Heels celebrated by winning their second national championship in a row. Carolina opened the season with 10 consecutive victories to run its winning streak to 33 games, but then it dropped back-to-back decisions to Missouri-St. Louis and Cortland State. Following that second loss, the Tar Heels won their next nine games, culminating in an NCAA title with a 2-0 win over Central Florida in Orlando, Fla. Amy Machin's 22 goals and 59 points led the team in scoring and she scored one of the two goals in the championship game victory. Betsy Johnson came off the bench to score off a rebound late in the first half for the title-winning goal.

The 1983 campaign brought the arrival of April Heinrichs to the Carolina campus. The first legendary women's soccer player in the American game and now coach of the U.S. Women's National Team, Heinrichs was the most dominant player of the mid-1980s in collegiate soccer and on the U.S. National Team. In her freshman season, Heinrichs led the Tar Heels to their third straight national title as she scored 18 goals and totaled 47 points on the season. Machin was again amongst the team's leaders in scoring with 19 goals and she added seven assists as well. Only a loss at Connecticut in the opening game of the season prevented UNC from having another perfect season. Carolina claimed its third national title in a row as Heinrichs scored two goals in a convincing 4-0 win over George Mason in Orlando, Fla.

In 1984, the Tar Heels were the No. 1-ranked team in the nation from season's start to season's finish and they capped their fourth straight national title campaign with a 2-0 win over Connecticut at Fetzer Field. It was the first of seven times UNC would play host to the NCAA final four at Fetzer Field. Heinrichs, the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America

(ISAA) National Player of the Year, led the team with 23 goals and 13 assists and Joan Dunlap-Seivold was second on the squad with 21 goals and 10 assists. Carolina went 24-0-1 in 1984 and won its first 17 games to run its consecutive game winning streak to a then NCAA record 36 games.

George Mason ended the 36-game winning streak by forcing a 1-1 tie during the 1984 regular season. The Tar Heels were again taken to overtime in the national semifinals by California, but a Machin goal with 9:05 left in the second extra period propelled the Heels into the NCAA finals against Connecticut. The championship game was played in front of 3,500 fans at Fetzer Field. Heinrichs and Dunlap-Seivold scored late second half goals to provide the Tar Heels with a 2-0 victory and a fourth straight national title.

The dynasty that is Carolina women's soccer took a one-year hiatus in 1985 as the Tar Heels lost the national championship game to host George Mason 2-0. Despite a 50-point season from Heinrichs and a team-leading 19 goals from Carrie Serwetnyk, the Tar Heels were "only" 18-2-1 during the course of the season. It was one of the five seasons out of 21 campaigns in which Carolina actually failed to win 20 games in a season. Ironically, Carolina still won the national championship in three of the five seasons in which it hasn't reached the 20-win plateau. After opening the 1985 season with a 3-3 draw against George Mason, Carolina ran off 12 straight wins and raised its record unbeaten streak to 57 games. Massachusetts ended the streak with a 2-0 win in Amherst, Mass. Carolina rebounded from that defeat with six consecutive wins and it advanced to the NCAA final to meet George Mason in Fairfax, Va. The Patriots scored a goal in each half and sent the Heels home without the first-place trophy for the first time since the national tournament concept was first played out in 1981. At that time no one suspected that Carolina would not lose another game for five years and over 100 games. In fact, the Tar Heels would never taste defeat again in the 1980s after that title game loss to George Mason.

The 1986 campaign proved to be a season of redemption for the Tar Heels as seniors April Heinrichs and Marcia McDermott were determined to go out as winners. Ironically, 17 years later those senior teammates are both significant figures in the sport. Heinrichs is of course the head coach of the U.S. Women's National Team while McDermott won the 2002 Women's United Soccer Association championship in her second season as head coach of the Carolina Courage. She now serves as assistant general manager for the team.

In 1986, Heinrichs again was named National Player of the Year, scoring a career-best 28 goals and totaling 69 points. McDermott set what was then the Carolina single-season record with 23 assists.

the season opener in Chapel Hill and then defeating George Mason 4-2 in a September meeting. The Tar Heels and the Patriots met again in the national semifinals and this time Carolina came out on top, 3-2 in overtime. Wendy Gebauer had two goals for Carolina and Heinrichs tallied the winner 5:50 into the first overtime. Gebauer and Tracey Bates scored a goal apiece in the title game the next day, a 2-0 victory over Colorado College. The Tar Heels found themselves back in familiar territory—atop the victory stand at the NCAA championship.

The 1987 campaign was the year of the defense in women's soccer—specifically a stifling Carolina unit which allowed only two goals during the entire season and posted an NCAA record 22 shutouts, a record equaled only once—by the 1997 UNC team. Defensive leader and Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year Lori Henry, sweeper Carla Werden Overbeck and goalkeeper Anne Sherow anchored a defense which allowed only 52 shots and two scores in 24 games en route to posting a 23-0-1 record. Only a tie with William & Mary marred the perfect record.

Midfielder Wendy Gebauer's 15 goals and 40 points led the Tar Heel offense in 1987, but it was a second-half goal by sophomore midfielder Shannon Higgins which proved to be the margin of victory in a 1-0 win over Massachusetts in the NCAA final. That game and the semifinal win over California, were played in near-Arctic weather conditions at Amherst, Mass., making it one of the most memorable NCAA Tournament's final fours to date. The wind was so strong that it made attacking offensively going against the gusts a futile proposition. Fortunately for Carolina the Tar Heels went against the wind in the first half of championships game and they were able to play the Minutewomen to a standstill. UNC received the benefit of the wind in the second half, scored the crucial goal and then hung on for to capture yet another NCAA championship. Higgins' game-winning goal would be the first of three in a row she would score in NCAA championship games.

The 1988 season proved to be a challenging one for the Tar Heels as Atlantic Coast Conference rival NC State threatened to steal the glory of college women's soccer and relocate the championship down I-40 to Raleigh. The teams battled to a pair of dramatic 1-1 ties, one in the regular season game at Raleigh and another in the ACC Tournament championship game on the Wolfpack's home field at Method Road Soccer Stadium. NC State actually won the ACC title on penalty kicks, but the game was officially recorded as a tie. It is the only time in history that the Tar Heels have failed to win the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

In mid-season, Carolina set a then NCAA records for a collegiate soccer unbeaten streak.

UNC seniors April Heinrichs, Kathleen O'Dell (obscured), Marcia McDermott and Bettina Bernardi celebrate the Tar Heels' 1986 NCAA championship. The Tar Heels defeated Colorado College 2-0 in the NCAA final to reclaim the title they had lost to George Mason the previous year.

First, the Tar Heels topped their own women's record of 57 games without a loss and then it bettered the Penn State men's team's 65-game record unbeaten streak for all of college soccer.

The 1988 Soccer America National Player of the Year, Shannon Higgins was a dominant force on the squad, directing playmaking duties and setting up goals both for herself and for teammates from her attacking center mid-field position. In the national championship game versus NC State, Higgins scored three goals in a 4-1 Carolina victory. That match was played in front of 4,500 fans at Fetzer Field, the largest collegiate women's soccer crowd to that time.

In 1989, Higgins again was the No. 1 player in the nation and she led the Tar Heels to yet another unbeaten finish and national title. Higgins was named the National Player of the Year by Soccer America. She won the Hermann Trophy and the Honda Award, was the ACC Player of the Year and she became the first-ever recipient of the Mary Garber Award as the Atlantic Coast Conference Female Athlete of the Year. She also led the team in scoring with 48 points. Incredibly, she scored the game-winning goal in the NCAA championship game for the third consecutive year against Colorado College in a 2-0 Tar Heel win.

Freshmen Mia Hamm and Kristine Lilly scored 21 and 20 goals, respectively although at that time it was a mere glimpse of that duo's future greatness in the world of women's soccer. Seniors Shannon Higgins, Julie Guarnotta, Ava Hyatt and Carla Werden Overbeck closed out their four-year careers with a stunning 89-0-6 record and a quartet of NCAA championship rings.

In 1990, Carolina again won the national championship, but did so with a mark in the loss column for the first time since November 24, 1985. On September 22, 1990, Connecticut ended the Tar Heels' national record unbeaten streak at 103 games by defeating the Tar Heels 3-2 in overtime at Storrs, Conn. Ironically, the Tar Heels would go on to avenge that defeat by routing the Huskies 6-0 in the NCAA championship game at newly renovated Fetzer Field later in the year.

Following the loss at Connecticut, the Tar Heels fell out of the number one spot in the ISAA poll for the first time since the second week of the 1986 season. Carolina regained the top spot, however, by knocking off No. 1-ranked Virginia 3-0 late in the regular season at Chapel Hill and it then beat the Cavaliers again 2-0 in the ACC Tournament title game at Charlottesville, Va.

The 1990 national quarterfinals matched the Tar Heels against old nemesis NC State in what would be one of the most exciting and dramatic games ever played in the sport's history. The Wolfpack held one-goal leads late in regulation time and again in the first overtime period, but both times the Tar Heels came back to tie the game on goals by Kristine Lilly. Finally, with just over two minutes left before penalty kicks would have been called upon to decide the outcome of the game, Hamm lofted a curving corner kick which forward Rita Tower redirected with her head for the game-winning goal.

After that dramatic game, which Soccer America dubbed the "Greatest Game in Women's Soccer History," the NCAA final four seemed almost like an emotional letdown. Tower and Lilly each scored in the 2-1 semifinal round win over Colorado College and six different Tar Heels scored in the championship game rout of Connecticut. The Tar Heels finished that season with a 20-1-1 record, having also tied a game with Central Florida four games after the loss at UConn.

In 1991, the Tar Heels had to defend their title minus a host of spectacular players and its head coach. The top four leading scorers from the year before were not available to the team for much of the season. Kristine Lilly played the first 19 games of the season but departed prior to the ACC and NCAA Tournaments to play in the 1991 Women's

Defender Linda Hamilton (left) and midfielder Kristine Lilly (right) assist forward Mia Hamm off the field after UNC's dramatic 4-3 overtime win over NC State in the 1990 NCAA quarterfinals at Fetzer Field. Soccer America has called that contest the "Greatest Game in Women's Soccer History."

World Cup in China. Mia Hamm, also on the World Cup Team, decided to claim a red-shirt year in 1991 and did not play at all. Forward Rita Tower and midfielder Jill Jakowich were rehabilitating knee injuries and neither of them ever stepped on the field during the 1991 season.

Nevertheless, led by freshman midfield sensation Tisha Venturini and senior forward Pam Kalinoski, who herself had battled back from a serious knee injury, Carolina prevailed once again. UNC won 24 consecutive games, including the last 10 of the campaign with assistant coach Bill Palladino at the controls after Dorrance left to coach the U.S. National Team in the World Cup in China. The Tar Heels swept to the ACC regular-season title as well as the conference tournament championship. Lilly was the consensus National Player of the Year and ACC Player of the Year. Venturini was the National Freshman of the Year and ACC Tournament Most Valuable Player. Venturini and Kalinoski split MVP honors in the NCAA Tournament. Kalinoski set what was then the national record for assists in a season with 28 and Venturini led the nation in scoring with 21 goals and 58 total points.

The 1992 Tar Heels were what many observers have called the best team in the history of collegiate women's soccer. It would be extremely difficult to argue to the contrary.

Carolina rolled to a 25-0 record, a seventh consecutive NCAA title and established the NCAA record for consecutive wins at 58 games by season's end.

The Tar Heels outscored their opposition 132-11 and trailed on just two occasions, once in the regular season victory at NC State and again in the NCAA final versus Duke. Both opponents' leads were very short-lived. In fact in the NCAA championship game against Duke, the Tar Heels rattled off nine successive goals after the Blue Devils drew first blood.

Hamm led the nation with a school record 97 points on 32 goals and 33 assists, the latter mark comprising yet another school record. She was the unanimous choice as National Player of the Year and she also was the ACC Player of the Year as well as the Most Valuable Player of both the ACC and NCAA Tournaments. Lilly and Venturini added 65 and 46 points, respectively, and joined Hamm as first-team All-Americans.

The Tar Heels won the NCAA championship during a surreal 9-1 victory over Duke at rain-soaked and muddy Fetzer Field as Hamm became only the second player to ever score three goals in an NCAA final. But the most remarkable feat of the season may have been a mid-season West Coast road trip in which Carolina won four games in as many days by a combined margin of 22-2, including wins over three ranked opponents. The Tar Heel victims were UC-Santa Barbara 5-1, Portland 6-1, Saint Mary's 6-0 and Stanford 5-0.

In 1993, Hamm was again a unanimous selection as the National Player of the Year as she led the country in scoring with 68 points on 26 goals and 16 assists. She helped lead the Tar Heels to a 23-0 record as Carolina outscored the opposition, 92-15. Carolina hosted the NCAA final four at Fetzer Field for the fourth successive year and walked away with yet another national championship.

Hamm finished her career with 103 goals, 72 assists and 278 points, each a school record. She also set NCAA Tournament scoring records for career and single tournament points and in 1994 she was named the recipient of the Mary Garber Award as the ACC's Top Female Athlete for the second consecutive year.

Tisha Venturini missed several weeks at midseason with a broken bone in her foot but returned in time to reap Most Valuable Player honors at the ACC Tournament. The Tar Heels claimed their fifth straight league crown by virtue of a 4-1 win over Duke. Venturini was named first-team All-America for the third time.

Chapel Hill played host to the NCAA final four for the fourth year in a row and before an overflow and then NCAA record crowd of 5,721, UNC dismantled George Mason 6-0 in the final after the Tar Heels had whipped Massachusetts 4-1 in the semifinals.

The 1994 season was another remarkable and triumphant campaign as the Tar Heels went 25-1-1 and won the NCAA championship for an amazing ninth straight year. Venturini was the game's most dominant attraction as she reaped virtually every major award possible. She was unanimously selected the National Player of the Year by seven different organizations and received first-team All-America honors for the fourth time in her career.

Venturini, who led the Tar Heels with 21 goals and 13 assists for 55 points, was the ACC Player of the Year, MVP of the ACC Tournament and Most Outstanding Offensive Player of the NCAA Tournament. It was the third time in her career in which she was named the ACC Tournament MVP and the second time she earned MVP honors in the NCAA Tournament.

Freshman Staci Wilson earned first-team All-America honors, was the National Freshman of the Year and the Most Outstanding Defensive Player in the NCAA Tournament. Senior Angela Kelly was named first-team All-America and senior Danielle Egan and sophomore Debbie Keller were named second-team All-Americans.

The Tar Heels had two incredible streaks of consistency and excellence snapped in the regular season. An NCAA record consecutive game winning streak hit 92 contests before Carolina and Notre Dame battled to a 0-0 tie in St. Louis, Mo. on October 2, 1994.

On October 19, 1994, Duke handed the Tar Heels a 3-2 defeat at Fetzer Field. That loss snapped a 101-game unbeaten streak for the Tar Heels dating back to September 22, 1990 when the Tar Heels lost at Connecticut, 3-2 in overtime. The setback was also Carolina's first home loss at Fetzer Field since 1980.

The Tar Heels and Blue Devils met twice more during the 1994 campaign, however, and Carolina came away with a 4-2 win in the ACC Tournament championship game and a 3-1 win in the NCAA Tournament South Regional title match.

Venturini had three goals in the ACC final, the first hat trick in the seven-year history of the Tournament, and Kelly netted a pair of goals in the regional final.

The national semifinals and final were held in Portland, Ore., where Venturini stole the show in the final two games of her college career. She capped her brilliant four years at Carolina by leading the Tar Heels to a 3-0 win over Connecticut in the semifinals and a 5-0 triumph over top-seeded Notre Dame in the final. Venturini scored twice in the championship game as Carolina outshot the Fighting

The senior class of Tisha Venturini, Danielle Egan, Angela Kelly, Keri Sanchez, Roz Santana, Shelley Finger, Dawn Crow, Susie Green, Alison Brooks and Jenn Eames finished its career with a record of 97 wins, one loss, one tie and four national championships.

The 1995 season saw the Tar Heels' national championship streak end at nine seasons in a row. It's regretful that the 1995 season ended that way since it marred one of Dorrance's finest coaching jobs of his 24-year tenure at Carolina. The previous year's senior class of 10 individuals was one of the most dominant in the history of the game. Carolina entered the 1995 campaign an extremely inexperienced team with only three senior players and with a host of new starters on the field.

Dorrance molded the young players into a cohesive unit very quickly, however, and somehow the Heels reeled off 25 successive wins while playing the nation's toughest schedule. Carolina won its eighth ACC title in nine years by sweeping through the tournament field and outscoring their opponents 16-0 in the three games.

UNC quickly dispatched Vanderbilt 4-0 in the NCAA second round after getting a bye in the first round as the tournament's top seed. Seventh-ranked Santa Clara fell victim to the Tar Heels 2-0 in the quarterfinals at Fetzer Field before UNC was beaten in the semifinals on an own goal in a 1-0 loss to fourth-ranked Notre Dame. What was then a women's soccer record crowd of 7,212 watched that Tar Heel loss, only the sixth loss at home in school history dating back to 1979. Notre Dame went on to beat Portland two days later for the NCAA title on a golden goal.

Standout performances abounded during the 1995 campaign. Four Tar Heels earned first-team All-America honors—forward Debbie Keller, forward Cindy Parlow, defender Staci Wilson and goalkeeper Tracy Noonan Ducar. Forward Robin Confer and defender Nel Fettig were second-team All-America selections, while midfielder Tiffany Roberts was an honorable mention choice. Keller and Wilson were named co-National Players of the Year by Soccer Digest.

During the summer of 1996, Carolina's soccer fame grew during the Olympic Games with the women's soccer competition being held at the University of Georgia's Sanford Stadium in Athens, Ga. The U.S. won the gold medal, beating China 2-1 in the gold medal match with the help of a cast that had a pronounced Carolina Blue hue. Both assistant coaches for the team, Lauren Gregg and April Heinrichs, were Carolina graduates. Seven of the 16 players on the roster were either Carolina alumnae or Tar Heel players returning for the 1996 season. This cadre included Mia Hamm, Tisha Venturini, Carla Werden Overbeck, Kristine Lilly, Cindy Parlow, Staci Wilson and Tiffany Roberts.

Led by the play of co-National Players of the Year Debbie Keller and Cindy Parlow, UNC returned to the pinnacle of the collegiate women's soccer world during the 1996 campaign. After a painfully slow start which saw the Tar Heels struggle through their first eight games yet somehow escape unscathed, Carolina fell to Notre Dame in the season's ninth game, 2-1 in overtime. The Fighting Irish thus became the first collegiate team in history to beat Carolina two times in a row.

Concerned about Carolina's lackluster play to that point of the season, Dorrance made some bold moves with his lineup. He reconfigured his defensive strategy to a flat back three and Carolina has stuck to that defensive scheme ever since. Dorrance also moved a handful of key players to new positions on the field. Those plays worked with complete and total success.

Carolina steamrolled through the final 17 games of the campaign to finish with a 25-1-0 record, while winning its 14th national championship in 16 years. UNC had spirited opposition in the ACC Tournament as Carolina claimed its eighth league crown in a row with wins over Florida State 7-1, Virginia 5-2 and Clemson 4-1. Junior forward Robin Confer was named the Most Valuable Player of the ACC Tournament.

The Tar Heels then were the surprise pick as the No. 1 seed in the NCAA Tournament despite the fact that Notre Dame had beaten Carolina during the regular season and both teams had only one loss heading into postseason play. Carolina shut out its first three opponents in the NCAA Tournament and then received a stiff challenge from home-standing Santa Clara in the semifinals. Earlier in the season the Tar Heels had escaped against Santa Clara on a goal in the last minute of play by Keller in a 1-0 UNC win.

This time against Santa Clara, goals late in the second half by Cindy Parlow and Laurie Schwoy gave the Tar Heels a tense 2-1 victory. Two days later, Carolina avenged its last two defeats to Notre Dame by beating the second-seeded Fighting Irish 1-0 in overtime in the NCAA title match. Senior forward Debbie Keller ended her career on a splendid note by scoring the game-winning goal on a header in the match's 111th minute.

Carolina was again the best team in the country in 1997, led by co-national players of the year, forwards Cindy Parlow and Robin Confer. The Tar Heels ended the season at 27-0-1 with only a regular-season, lightning shortened 2-2 tie against Notre Dame marring the perfect mark. UNC allowed a paltry eight goals in 28 games and tied the NCAA record for shutouts in a season with 22. That mark had originally been established by the 1987 NCAA championship team at UNC.

Carolina's toughest matches of the year came in the final three rounds of the NCAA Tournament as the Tar Heels outlasted pesky Harvard 1-0 in the quarterfinals, came from behind to defeat Santa Clara 2-1 in the semifinals as Fair and Confer scored second half goals to overcome the Broncos' 1-0 halftime lead and blanked Connecticut 2-0 in the chamampionship game on goals by Parlow and Confer.

The 1998 team was an outstanding one which will unfortunately be known for not winning a national championship. Led by seniors Cindy Parlow, Siri Mullinix and Tiffany Roberts the Tar Heel won the first 24 games of the season heading into the NCAA final four at Greensboro, N.C.. Carolina defeated Portland 1-0 in the semifinals on Meredith Florance's goal in the 150th minute of play, just 22 seconds before going to penalty kicks. In the championship game, Florida scored in the first 10 minutes of play and Carolina was unable to sational freshman goalkeeper Jenni Branam just refused to let Carolina lose down the season's stretch. En route, Carolina won its 11th straight ACC championship and it capped the season with brilliant play in the NCAA final four, beating Penn State 2-0 in the semifinals and Notre Dame 2-0 in the championship game. Junior Meredith Florance and senior midfielder Beth Sheppard scored the goals in the championship game for Carolina.

In 2000, the Tar Heels somehow won their 12th successive ACC championship and its 17th national championship. Carolina's regular season was unique in that the Tar Heels lost three games in the same season for the first time since 1980. All three losses came on the road against Atlantic Coast Conference teams. Prior to 2000 the Tar Heels had lost one ACC game in their history.

UNC rebounded to sweep past three opponents easily in the ACC Tournament winning against Duke 4-0 in the finals at Durham, N.C.

Seeded fifth entering the NCAA Tournament, UNC beat Wake Forest 5-0 in the second round, avenging one of the regular season losses. In three of the last four games the Tar Heels rallied from 1-0 deficits with less than 25 minutes to play to win the national championship. Carolina beat Virginia 2-1 in the third round, rolled past Connecticut 3-0 in the quarterfinals, rallied to beat top-seeded Notre Dame 2-1 in the semifinals and overcame UCLA 2-1 in the national championship game.

Despite not winning NCAA titles the past two seasons Carolina did extend its string of ACC titles to 15 in a row with 2001 and 2002 victories.

As Carolina prepares for the 2003 season the challenge for Dorrance and his charges will be to try to improve upon numbers which are already staggering in nature. These include a 532-25-15 overall record and a 225-7-4 record in the history of Fetzer Field, UNC's beloved home turf. It includes 386 defensive shutouts in the previous 572 games. It includes a record where UNC has been shutout in only 16 of 572 games. It is a history of dominant soccer honed over 24 seasons of excellence. The numbers are simply amazing and they do not lie!

The 1997 Carolina women's soccer team was one of the best units ever assembled by Coaches Dorrance and Palladino. The Heels claimed another NCAA crown by vanquishing Connecticut 2-0 in the finals. Carolina's 27-0-1 record included 22 shutout victories which tied the NCAA record for shutouts in a season originally set by the 1987 Tar Heel team.

produce the equalizer despite outshooting the Gators 21-6. The game was marred by intensely physical play by the Gators who were called for 31 bone-crunching fouls compared to only four infractions whistled on the swift and talented Tar Heels.

The 1999 campaign started in unsettling fashion as Carolina lost two games in September and stood 6-2 just eight games into the season. It was the first time Carolina had even lost two games in the same season since 1985.

But a strong senior class led by National Player of the Year Lorrie Fair as well as Rebekah McDowell, Lindsay Stoecker and Beth Sheppard rallied the troops. Over the final 18 games of the season, Carolina allowed only five goals, including only one in the final 13 games. The signature Tar Heel defense, keyed by Fair and Stoecker, and featuring first-team All-America Danielle Borgman and sen-

Fetzer Field

The University of North Carolina women's soccer program is fortunate to call as its home Robert Allison Fetzer Field. Fetzer Field at Irwin Belk Track is one of the premier soccer domains in the nation.

Originally built in 1935 and renovated during a period from 1988-90, the facility has been host to the NCAA Division I Women's Soccer Championship final four seven times since 1984, including six times since 1988.

A Fetzer Field record crowd of 7,212, at the time the most to ever see a women's collegiate soccer game, watched the Tar Heels fall to Notre Dame 1-0 in the 1995 NCAA semifinals.

The largest regular-season crowd in Fetzer Field lore witnessed the Tar Heels' 5-1 victory over second-ranked Notre Dame on September 13, 1998 as 6,024 fans filed through the Fetzer Field gates. That crowd still stands as the largest regular season crowd in NCAA women's soccer history for any game not played as part of a doubleheader with a men's soccer team.

Large crowds are a regular part of UNC women's soccer history. Carolina has led the NCAA in average home attendance in each of the past five years. Of the top 35 crowds in collegiate women's soccer history, 29 have watched the Tar Heels in action, including 13 of the top 14 crowds.

The Tar Heels have amassed one of the best and track coach Bob Fetzer, Fetzer Field has been the home of Carolina soccer since 1947, the first year UNC sponsored a varsity men's team. The women's program was started in 1979.

Located in the heart of the Carolina campus directly behind Carmichael Auditorium on South Road (N.C. State Road 54), the stadium was completed in 1935 as a Works Project Administration program during the administration of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt

The facility's most recent renovations made it one of the most beautiful all-around collegiate venues in the nation. The playing field itself was reworked and leveled, the grandstand was refitted with new aluminum bleachers, a new track was installed, lights were added, two convenient ticket booths were added to the front gate and a computer scoreboard/message center was installed. Even more recently the facility's concession areas have been revamped so they are more convenient for fans. The initial renovations were completed in time for Carolina to celebrate before 2,200 fans with a 3-0 win over top-ranked Virginia on October 20, 1990.

Large crowds have been the rule at Fetzer Field since the inception of the women's program in 1979.

In 1988, an estimated throng of 4,500 fans came out to Fetzer for the NCAA final between Carolina and NC State. That was, at the time, the largest crowd ever to attend a collegiate women's soccer match.

The 1990 NCAA Tournament drew an estimated 6,700 spectators to the stadium—2,000 to watch the quarterfinal round win over NC State, 1,500 for the semifinal round and 3,200 for the championship game.

Another 7,000 fans streamed through the Fetzer Field gates to watch the 1991 NCAA tournament games, which culminated in a title-game victory over Wisconsin.

In 1992, more than 3,500 enthusiasts braved a steady downpour as the Tar Heels crushed ACC rival Duke 9-1 in the national finals.

A year later, in Mia Hamm's collegiate finale, 5,721 fans were on hand at Fetzer as Carolina routed George Mason 6-0 in the title game.

Currently Fetzer Field is the home facility for six of Carolina's 28 varsity teams—men's soccer, women's soccer, men's outdoor track and field, women's outdoor track and field, men's lacrosse and women's lacrosse.

The facility has been home not only to women's soccer NCAA and ACC Championships, but also ACC Track and Field

The University of North Carolina's McCaskill Soccer Center

The new McCaskill Soccer Center on the University of North Carolina campus was dedicated in a gala ceremony on April 11, 1999. Attending the event were members of the Educational Foundation as well as dozens of other University of North Carolina soccer enthusiasts.

Construction of the new 6,600-square-foot soccer facility at the University of North Carolina was completed early in the month of April 1999.

The new McCaskill Soccer Center is located on the same site as the former soccer offices next to Fetzer Field where home matches are played. The old soccer offices were located in a building called the UNC Soccer Hut which dated back to 1935.

The new two-story structure accommodates varsity men's and women's soccer locker rooms on the first floor as well as a common team meeting room between the dressing areas.

The second floor houses coaches' offices for both sports as well as a large conference room.

Carolina has one of the richest traditions in collegiate soccer. Since the men's team attained varsity status in 1947 the Tar Heels have suffered only five losing seasons in the last 56 years and only one losing season since

Carolina has appeared in the NCAA Tournament 10 times in the last 16 years. Eight of those appearances have come in the last 14 years when Elmar Bolowich has served as head coach. One of the high water marks for the Tar Heel men's team came in 1987 when UNC claimed the ACC championship and advanced to the NCAA semifinals. Under Bolowich, the Tar Heel men's team made great strides during the 1999 season, earning the first NCAA bid in five years. The 2000 season was an amazing one for UNC men's soccer as Carolina claimed the ACC championship and advanced to the NCAA Tournament quarterfinals. Carolina went one better in 2001, earning the first NCAA men's soccer championship in school history.

Coach Anson Dorrance's women's teams have been one of the most amazing dynasties in college athletics. The Tar Heels have won 17 national championships in their 24 years of competition. They have an all-time record of 532-25-15.

The women have an incredible record of 225-7-4 at Fetzer Field. In 15 of the past 19 years, Carolina has had at least one player chosen National Player of the Year by some soccer organization. Eight current or former Tar Heels were on the United States National Team which won the Gold Medal at the 1999 Women's World Cup Championship.

"The former 1,200-square-foot soccer office was greatly outdated," says UNC Director of Athletics Dick Baddour. "We've made improvements to a lot of our facilities in recent years and this one was badly needed. That would be the case regardless of the teams' records. We want to give our student-athletes the best chance to succeed and enjoy the experience here. This is a way to help in that regard."

The destruction of the Old UNC Soccer Hut was carried out in early 1997. Construction of the new building commenced following the conclusion of the 1997 season. In the meantime, the soccer offices were housed in temporary facilities at Finley Field, the Tar Heels' practice facility near the University golf course.

While the new center has over five times more space than the old facility, the expansion occurred without any loss of parking on campus, always a major concern.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Board of Trustees approved the selection of NBBJ Architects of the Research Triangle Park to design the project. Estimated cost of construction was approximately $1,700,000.00. The project was funded through Athletic Department funds and Educational Foundation gifts. The building was named in honor of Bud and Mildred McCaskill, long-time benefactors of the University and Educational Foundation members.

Fetzer Field and the McCaskill Soccer Center give Carolina two of the best facilities in collegiate women's soccer.

1981 AIAW Championship

The University of North Carolina won its first national championship with a dominating 23-0 season that culminated in a 1-0 victory over Central Florida in the tournament's final weekend, where the Heels went three games in three days without giving up a single goal. The 1981 women's soccer championship was sponsored by the AIAW, and featured a 12 team National Tournament.

The tournament's final game saw UNC outshoot the Golden Knights of Central Florida 30-8. Despite the large shooting disparity the game stayed close, as Carolina only managed one goal on the day. The decisive score came when Diane Beatty knocked one home off of a Kathy Kelly corner kick with 19:36 left on the clock before halftime. The goal lifted the Heels to their first national title and capped a weekend of impressive soccer by from Carolina.

The team kicked off their dominating three day performance by defeating Massachusetts 6-0, one of 17 shutouts goalkeeper Marianne Johnson and Beth Huber would collect on the year. The two combined to yield only eight goals over Carolina's 23 game season. The day after the Massachusetts game the Heels faced Connecticut in the national semifinals. The game would be another shutout, with Carolina claiming victory by a score of 5-0 to advance to their finals shutout of Central Florida.

Winning three games in three days by a combined score of 12-0 was just one example of the many astounding things the 1981 team did that year. The Tar Heels asserted their dominance throughout the season, averaging 7.48 goals per contest. For the season Carolina scored a total of 172 goals, a mark which still stands as the school record.

On the season Carolina would score multiple goals in every game that they played, with the exception of the AIAW final against Central Florida. Central Florida would also be the only team to come within a point of Carolina on the year, their next closest decisions being a 2-0 victory at Connecticut during the regular season.

The potent Carolina offense was led by 36-goal scorer Stephanie Zeh, a single season plateau that no other Tar Heel has ever reached. Zeh managed to find the back of the net in 14 of Carolina's 23 contests. But Zeh was not alone, getting 30 scores from teammate Janet Rayfield and 18 from Wendy Greenberg.

1982 NCAA Championship

1982 was exciting in that it was the first year the NCAA served as the governing body for women's soccer, and North Carolina celebrated the fact by winning their second national championship in a row. Just like the year before, the Tar Heels faced and defeated the University of Central Florida for the championship, this time held in Orlando, Florida.

UNC defeated the Golden Knights by a score of 2-0, with reserve Betsy Johnson coming off the bench to score on a rebound late in the first half to break the scoreless tie. The goal would be all the Heels would need on the day, but Carolina later added an insurance goal from Amy Machin, whose 22 goals and 59 points led the Tar Heels on the season.

To get to the finals, the Tar Heels had to avenge one of their two losses on the season. On October 16th at the University of Central Florida Invitational the Heels dropped a game 1-2 against Missouri-St. Louis. But in the NCAA semifinals the Tar Heels would not be denied, reversing the score from the two teams earlier contest to claim a 2-1 win of their own.

Prior to the first game against Missouri-St. Louis the Tar Heels were cruising through their schedule, with early season victories over Virginia, Duke and Boston College helping Carolina to win its own Tar Heel invitational.

In all, Carolina ripped off 10 consecutive wins to start the 1982 season, running their winning streak to 33 games counting the previous year's 23-0 mark. The streak ended with the Missouri-St. Louis loss. Carolina's only two losses on the year would end up being back to back, after a loss the next night to Cortland State.

Following the two losses in the UCF Invitational in Orlando Carolina began another impressive streak, finishing the year with nine consecutive victories. During the nine game span the Tar Heels allowed only one goal and outscored their opponents 51-1. The last two wins, in the NCAA semifinal and final, would come in Orlando, redemption for the two losses in the same city that proved to be the only losses the Heels would suffer during their 19-2 championship season.

1983 NCAA Championship

Carolina would claim its third consecutive national championship in 1983 with a convincing victory in the NCAA finals over George Mason. In addition to being an impressive 19-1 championship season, 1983 will also be remembered as the first year for Carolina standout April Heinrichs.

The freshman would lead the Heels in scoring, tallying 18 goals and amassing 47 total points to pace the Carolina offense. Amy Machin would join Heinrichs at the forefront of the Carolina offense, netting 19 goals of her own. Heinrichs opened the scoring in the final against George Mason, adding a second goal later in the game as the Heels rolled past the Patriots 4-0. Carolina would wind up defeating George Mason three times on the year, giving up only one goal in the 270 minutes that they played against the Patriots.

The NCAA tournament began at home for the Heels, as Carolina defeated California 5-2 on their home field to advance yet again to the NCAA semifinals. There they would defeat Massachusetts 2-0.

As impressive as the end of the season was, the year began in quite inauspicious fashion, with Carolina on the losing end of a 1-3 decision at Connecticut in the Heels season opener. But the game would be the only one the Heels would lose, as they bounced back in their second game by defeating Boston College, beginning a streak of 19 consecutive wins on their way to the title.

During the season Heinrichs collected five assists in a game against Warren Wilson, a standard that has never been bested by any Tar Heel before or since. The Heels defense would also be strong for UNC all year, anchored by All America selection Suzy Cobb, who was named NCAA tournament Most Valuable Player. Heinrichs and Cobb would be joined by five Carolina teammates as All-NCAA Tournament selections.

1984 NCAA Championship

In 1984 the University of North Carolina women's soccer team had one of the most dominant years in the history of soccer's most powerful programs. When the Tar Heels defeated the University of Connecticut 2-0 on Fetzer Field to win the NCAA championship, it capped a season that saw the Heels spend every week of the season as the nation's number one team on their way to an undefeated record.

The title game was the first NCAA championship decided on Fetzer Field, the home of the Tar Heels and a stadium originally built in 1935. In front of 3,500 fans April Heinrichs found the back of the net late in the second half, scoring what would ultimately be the championship game winning goal for the second consecutive year. Carolina would add another goal from Joan Dunlap-Seivold and complete the shutout behind keeper Beth Huber for a 2-0 victory and the Heels third consecutive NCAA title.

The Tar Heels chances of winning an NCAA title on their home field were almost dashed before even reaching the championship game thanks to a more than game California team. After taking care of Central Florida 4-1 in the quarterfinals, the Heels faced the Golden Bears in the semifinals the second time the two programs had faced off in the two school's collective histories.

The first had been the previous year, when UNC eliminated Cal from the NCAA's in the quarterfinal round 5-2. This time the score would be much closer, with Carolina taking the victory 2-1 in overtime via an Amy Machin score, in what happened to be the first overtime win in Carolina soccer history.

The Heels offense was once again paced by All-American April Heinrichs, who was named the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America National Player of the Year. The ISAA gave Heinrichs the award after tallying 23 goals and 13 assists on the season. Joan Dunlap-Seivold was second on the squad with a total of 21 goals to go along with 13 assists of her own.

But for all the Heels did on offense, their defense was equally spectacular. The Heels allowed only one goal through the first 17 games of the season, an ultimately meaningless score during a 6-1 win over Virginia. The only game on the season that Carolina would walk away from without a victory was a 1-1 tie at George Mason. The tie ended a 36 game winning streak for the Heels. For the regular season the Heels would get shutouts in 18 of 22 games, 21 of which they won on their way to a 24-0-1 record.

1986 NCAA Championship

The 1986 season provided North Carolina with a challenge that they had never before had to face, the task of reclaiming the title of National Champion after losing in the national championship game the previous year to host George Mason. A hungry Carolina team did just that, with seniors April Heinrichs and Marcia McDermott making sure their Carolina careers ended in triumph.

The Heels avenged both of their losses from the previous year, first beating Massachusetts, the team that had ended UNC's 57 game winning streak. The 4-0 victory came in the season opener, and was followed a few weeks later by a 4-2 defeat of George Mason that gave Carolina some redemption for the loss in the previous year's championship. But that size of that win would pale in comparison to the next Tar Heel victory over George Mason.

After ripping through UC Santa Barbara 8-0 in the NCAA quarterfinals the Heels once again met up with rival George Mason in the semi's. Wendy Gebauer scored twice, but the game stayed tight and eventually went to overtime. In the extra session Carolina's standout senior stepped up and made sure George Mason would not knock the Tar Heels out again. Once again named National Player of the Year, April Heinrichs found the back of the net 5:50 into overtime to send UNC to the final.

Tracey Bates opened the scoring in the championship final against Colorado College. Heinrichs would later score the third time in her four-year career in which she had a goal in the NCAA final. The two goals would be the only ones scored on the day, as the Heels defeated Colorado College and reclaimed their status at the top of the mountain.

On the season North Carolina went 24-0-1, the tie coming in a 1-1 stalemate against Central Florida in the second game of the season. From there Carolina would fight their way to 23 consecutive wins, beginning an unbeaten streak that would continue for over 100 games and span the rest of the 80's.

1986 marked the end of the exceptional career of April Heinrichs, who amassed 225 points in her career. She scored 87 goals and was named a first team All-America forward her final three years. She was NCAA all tournament all four years and ranks second in points and third in career goals all time at North Carolina.

1987 NCAA Championship

It's difficult to decide what was the top story of the Carolina's 1987 championship season, the stifling defense that anchored UNC throughout the year, or the brutal cold it weathered in winning the final four. Either way 1987 was an extremely memorable season for the Tar Heels.

Of the first five NCAA Final Four's, none had been held north of the Mason Dixon line. But that streak ended in 1987, as Amherst, Massachusetts played host to the women's soccer semifinals and championship game. Carolina survived the weather and a tough California team to advance to the finals against host team Massachusetts.

The game was played in seemingly arctic weather conditions, the wind being so strong that that it made attacking going into the gusts a practical impossibility. Carolina went into the wind for the first half, putting the pressure on its record-breaking defense to hold off Massachusetts and keep the score knotted at zero. As it had been all year the defense was up to the challenge, and the Heels entered halftime knowing the wind would be at their backs in the second half of a till then scoreless match.

In the second half Carolina received the crucial goal it was looking for as sophomore midfielder Shannon Higgins found the back of the net. Massachusetts did everything it could to try and even the score, but Carolina held on for the 1-0 victory, an undefeated 23-0-1 season and another NCAA title.

It could be considered apropos that the final ended in a Carolina shutout, because defense was the Heel's forte in 1987. Carolina allowed only two goals during the entire season and posted an unprecedented NCAA record 22 shutouts. Defensive leader and Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year Lori Henry, sweeper Carla Werden Overbeck and goalkeeper Anne Sherow anchored a defense that allowed only 52 shots on goal all year.

The Championship Years

The only goals Carolina allowed on the season were to George Mason in a 4-1 victory and N.C. Wesleyan in a 10-1 blowout. Sherow would only personally give up one of the goals while playing over 1700 minutes in the net, finishing the year with an unbelievable .05 goals against average. Carolina's only non-win was a scoreless tie against William & Mary halfway through the year.

1988 NCAA Championship

Carolina faced one of the stiffest challenges it had ever known in 1988, and it came from a school just a few miles down I-40. The Tar Heels battled against the North Carolina State Wolfpack three times in 1988, including a contest for the NCAA championship.

Carolina stood at an impressive 5-0 when they traveled to Raleigh to face conference rival NC State. The Heels had bested the Wolfpack 3-0 the year before to claim the first ACC championship. This game would prove to be a sign of things to come, as the Wolfpack battled UNC and was able to emerge with a 1-1 tie against the Tar Heels.

The teams would meet again in the ACC finals, also held in Raleigh. Once again the game would officially end in a 1-1 tie. While the game officially ended as a tie, penalty kicks were employed to determine an ACC champion, and State would edge the Tar Heels to win the only ACC championship ever to be wrestled from Carolina.

After defeating first Central Florida in the quarterfinals and then Wisconsin in the semifinals, by scores of 2-1 and 3-0 respectively, Carolina geared up for a third meeting with NC State. But this game would be unlike the previous two. Firstly it would be for the NCAA championship, and secondly this game would be held not in Raleigh, but in Chapel Hill.

The final would not hold the same drama as the two 1-1 ties earlier in the season. Carolina would put four goals past the NC State defense, with the game winner coming from junior center midfielder Shannon Higgins, who scored three times on the day. Higgins would be named Soccer America National Player of the Year after leading the Heels in points with 13 goals and 17 assists on the season. When the final whistle sounded Carolina had secured a 4-1 victory and its sixth NCAA title.

During the regular season Carolina set NCAA records for collegiate soccer unbeaten streaks. First the team broke their own NCAA women's record of 57 consecutive games without a loss. Eight games later the record of 65 in a row held by the Penn State men's team also fell to the Tar Heels.

1989 NCAA Championship

The 1989 season saw the Tar Heels continue their unmatched streak of victories, as the Heels claimed yet another National Championship by streaking to a 24-0-1 record. Seniors Shannon Higgins, Julie Guarnota, Ava Hyatt and Carla Werden Overbeck provided Carolina soccer with one of its most impressive statistics by closing out their four year careers with a staggering undefeated record of 89-0-6, in addition to a quartet of championship rings.

The championship came on the home field of rival NC State, who the Tar Heels faced down and defeated in the semifinals 2-0 after first disposing of Hartford by a score of 9-0. The win put Carolina in the school against a familiar opponent, Colorado College, the school Carolina defeated in 1986 for the NCAA championship.

The result in 1989 would be the same as it was in 1986, with the Tar Heels winning the match 2-0. The game winner was scored by Shannon Higgins, amazingly the third consecutive year the goal that gave Carolina the NCAA title had come from the Carolina midfielder, who wound up winning just about every piece of hardware available that season.

Higgins led the Tar Heels in scoring with 48 points. She was named National Player of the Year once again by Soccer America, in addition to taking home the Hermann Trophy and the Honda Award. The heady midfielder was named ACC Player of the Year and became the first-ever recipient of the Mary Garber Award, given to commemorate the ACC Female Athlete of the Year.

On the year Carolina claimed the ACC championship via a 4-0 shutout win over Duke and a 5-3 victory versus NC State at the ACC tournament held in Durham. The Heels only stumble for the year came in their last regular season game, a 0-0 overtime game at Stanford.

In addition to the impressive accomplishments and statistics compiled by the 1989 seniors, the year will also be remembered as the freshman efforts of future Tar Heel stars Mia Hamm and Kristine Lilly, who scored 21 and 20 goals respectively in their first seasons in Chapel Hill.

1990 NCAA Championship

Jill Jakowich was the first Tar Heel to find the back of the net in Carolina's 6-0 rout of Connecticut in the finals of the 1990 NCAA women's championship. Five other Tar Heels joined her in the scoring column, as UNC ran away with its eighth national championship in front of 3,200 on a newly renovated Fetzer Field. The win was sweet, but at the same time almost anticlimactic considering the dramatic game North Carolina played just to reach the title match.

North Carolina and NC State had met in the NCAA tournament each of the previous two years and four times in all over the two seasons. Three of the games had been close, two ending in ties, but the 1990 quarterfinal game was easily the most dramatic of the series.

Late in regulation the Heels trailed State 2-1, and it looked like State might finally defeat its old ACC rival. But UNC sophomore Kristine Lilly scored without much time remaining to force overtime. In the extra session the Wolfpack took the lead once again, only to see Lilly find a way to answer once again.

Finally, with just over two minutes left before penalty kicks would have decided the game, Mia Hamm lofted a curving corner kick that forward Rita Tower redirected with her head for the game winning goal. Carolina survived 4-3 in what Soccer America would later call the "Greatest Game in Women's Soccer History."

The Tar Heels would get a few days to savor the win before facing Colorado College in the semifinals. The Heels won the match 2-1 on goals by Tower and Lilly, leading into the 6-0 finals victory over Connecticut.

The Connecticut rout was payback for a loss the Heels had suffered to the Huskies earlier that year in Storrs. The 3-2 overtime defeat was the first loss by a Carolina women's soccer team in 103 games, a seemingly unbreakable NCAA record. November 24, 1985 was the last time the Heels had been outscored, and the loss dropped UNC out of the number one spot in the ISAA poll for the first time since the second week of the 1986 season.

Carolina would not wait long before ascending to the top spot in the poll once again, reclaiming the position following a 3-0 victory over first ranked Virginia late in the season. The Heels would beat the Cavaliers again in the ACC tournament title game.

In all the Heels went 20-1-1 for the season, the only tie being a two all stalemate against Central Florida. Sophomore Mia Hamm led the Tar Heels in scoring with 24 goals and 19 assists.

1991 NCAA Championship

In 1991 the North Carolina Tar Heels faced a stiff challenge, defending its NCAA title without many of its top players and the man who had led them to each of their nine NCAA titles, head coach Anson Dorrance. The Heels would once again be up to the task, defeating two ACC rivals and then Wisconsin 3-1 in the finals to capture the NCAA title.

The US National Team came calling to Chapel Hill in 1991, as Kristine Lilly and Mia Hamm were invited to play in the World Cup in China. Lilly would participate in the teams first 19 games, while Hamm took a redshirt and did not play at all. The National team coach would be UNC head man Anson Dorrance. In addition, forward Rita Tower and midfielder Jill Jakowich were both rehabbing knee injuries that prevented either from playing a minute that season, meaning UNC would go at it without their top four scorers from the previous season.

The Tar Heels didn't allow the absence of so many of its top names to keep them from once again reaching the programs lofty standards. And when sophomore Paige Coley found the back of the net for the game winner over Wisconsin it completed a perfect 24-0 championship season.

Carolina defeated NC State in consecutive games late in the 1991 season. The first was a 5-1 victory that gave the Heels another ACC championship. Just shy of two weeks later the two teams faced off again in Chapel Hill in the NCAA quarterfinals. This time the Heels dispatched the Wolfpack by a score of 4-1. UNC defeated another ACC rival in the semifinals, a 5-1 victory over Virginia.

For the season only two teams came within a goal of matching the Tar Heels. Southern Methodist University came within a goal of the Heels in a 2-1 contest in the SMU classic at the start of the season, and Radford played Carolina close before losing 1-0.

The Heels were led by midfield sensation Tisha Venturini and senior forward Pam Kalinoski, who herself was coming back from a serious knee injury. Venturini was the nation's leading scorer with 21 goals and 58 total points, good enough to earn her National Freshman of the Year honors. She would split MVP honors with Kalinoski in the NCAA tournament. Kalinoski's 28 assists set what was at the time a national record. UNC assistant coach Bill Palladino steered the Tar Heels through the final ten games of the undefeated campaign.

1992 NCAA Championship

The 1992 Tar Heels are widely considered to be the best team in the history of NCAA soccer, and its difficult to argue to the contrary after a 25-0 season that saw Carolina trail only twice all season. Perhaps the most glaring highlight of the Heels dominance throughout the season was Carolina's 9-1 blowout of Duke in the NCAA title game.

The game would be one of the two occasions teams would lead the Tar Heels, as Duke drew first blood to jump out to a 1-0 lead on a rain-soaked and muddy Fetzer Field. But that advantage would be fleeting, as Carolina would roll off nine unanswered goals for the final margin.

The leading scorer on the day would be returning superstar Mia Hamm, who had redshirted the previous season to play for the National team in the World Cup. For the game Hamm had three goals, becoming only the second player to find the back of the net that many times in a championship final.

The Tar Heels outscored their opponents 132-11 on the season, including a four game West Coast road trip that saw the Heels win four games in four days against three ranked opponents, outscoring them 22-2. The victims included UC-Santa Barbara 5-1, Portland 6-1, Saint Mary's 6-0, and Stanford 5-0.

By the end of the season Carolina would establish a new NCAA record by totaling 58 consecutive wins dating back to October of 1990. They outscored their NCAA tournament opponents 19-1 after downing William & Mary 7-0 and Santa Clara 3-0 before the 9-1 championship win over Duke. The tournament was the third in a row held in Chapel Hill.

On the season Hamm led the nation with a school record 97 points on 32 goals and 33 assists, the latter statistic comprising yet another school record. She was the unanimous choice as National Player of the Year and also the ACC player of the year. Both the ACC and NCAA tournaments named her as tournament MVP.

1993 NCAA Championship

Chapel Hill played host to the NCAA Final Four for the fourth year in a row and before an overflow and then NCAA record crowd of 5,721 the Tar Heels dismantled George Mason 6-0 to capture the championship.

The game winner came from junior Keri Sanchez, the second consecutive year she scored the goal that sent the Tar Heels to the national title. The record crowd didn't see a close game, as the undefeated Heels rode their high-octane offense to run away with the match and finish the season at 23-0. On the year Carolina scored multiple goals in every game they played, only the second time in school history that feat had been accomplished, the first being 1992.

No team really came close to challenging the Tar Heels in the 1993 NCAA tournament. The tournament expanded to include four rounds of games for the first time, and Carolina won them all by at least three goals. In the opening round the Heels took out Southern Methodist University 4-1, it was the second time that Carolina had beaten SMU by that score on the year. The next day Carolina overwhelmed Florida International 3-0 to return to the final four. The Tar Heels whipped Massachusetts by a score of 4-1 in the semifinals to advance to the championship and ultimately walk away with the title.

In 1993 Mia Hamm was again a unanimous selection as the National Player of the Year as she led the country in scoring with 68 points on 26 goals and 16 assists. For her career Hamm stands as the schools leader in career points with 278, goals with 103 and assists with 72. In addition, Hamm holds NCAA tournament records for career scoring, goals and assists. During her four years Hamm managed to score a total of 16 goals in 13 NCAA tournament games.

Despite breaking a bone in her foot that caused her to miss several weeks during the middle of the season Tisha Venturini returned in time to reap Most Valuable Player honors at the NCAA tournament. The Tar Heels claimed their fifth straight league crown by virtue of a 4-1 win over Duke.

1994 NCAA Championship

The 1994 season was another remarkable and triumphant campaign as the Tar Heels went 25-1-1 and won the NCAA championship for an amazing ninth straight year. After four consecutive Final Fours in Chapel Hill the finals moved to Portland, Oregon, where senior Tisha Venturini stole the show.

The NCAA final actually saw the Tar Heels enter the game as the lower seeded team, their opponent Notre Dame holding the nation's number one position. The two teams had played to a scoreless 0-0 tie earlier in the season, but this time Carolina would have little trouble finding the back of the net. Senior Angela Kelly opened the scoring for Carolina, as the Tar Heels outshot the Fighting Irish 25-8. The story of the Final Four was UNC's Venturini, who scored twice in her final game as a Tar Heel. Carolina would add two more goals to make the Heels final margin of victory in the final 5-0 to secure the title. In the semifinals Venturini led the Tar Heels to another win as they forced their way to a shutout, this time blanking the Connecticut Huskies 3-0.

The Tar Heels had two incredible streaks of consistency snapped in the regular season. An NCAA record consecutive game winning streak hit 92 contests before Carolina and Notre Dame battled to a 0-0 tie in St. Louis on October 2, 1994 at the Americas Challenge Cup.

Seventeen days later the Heels would be shocked on their home field, where Duke University handed the Tar Heels a 3-2 defeat. That loss snapped a 101-game unbeaten streak for Carolina dating back to September of 1990. The setback was also Carolina's first home loss at Fetzer Field since 1980, the second year of the women's soccer program.

Carolina would see Duke twice more in the 1994 season, and on both occasions the Tar Heels gained some measure of revenge for the home loss. The first meeting was a 4-2 win in the ACC tournament championship game. In the contests Venturini would score three times, the first hat trick in the seven-year history of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

The third game between the two neighbors would come in the South Regional title game. After eliminating NC State the day before the Tar Heels handled Duke 3-1, with Angela Kelly netting a pair of goals.

Staci Wilson arrived in Chapel Hill and was named first team All-America in addition to National Freshman of the Year. For the season Venturini was soccer's most dominant player, collecting almost every imaginable honor that collegiate soccer has. Her senior class would finish their careers with a record of 97 wins, one loss, one tie and four national championships.

1996 NCAA Championship

The University of North Carolina women's soccer team returned in 1996 looking to reclaim its stranglehold on the sport's national title. After losing in the national semifinals the year before to Notre Dame Carolina once again had something to prove, which is exactly what they did via a 1-0 overtime victory of Notre Dame in the NCAA championship.

In front of 8,800 people in Santa Clara, California the Tar Heels stood as the higher seed, but perhaps as the team with more to prove. Carolina had been the surprise pick as the top seed in the NCAA tournament after losing to Notre Dame earlier in the season 2-1 in overtime. The loss marked the first time any school had ever beaten North Carolina twice in a row.

As expected the game was extremely close, as neither team was able to find away to penetrate the opposition's defense. Regulation ended with the game at a scoreless standstill, necessitating overtime to decide a national champion. In the match's 111th minute Carolina finally broke through, as senior forward Debbie Keller put one away to end her career on the highest possible note by scoring the only goal in a national title game.

The Tar Heels had an impressive showing in the NCAA tournament, shutting out William & Mary, James Madison and Florida by a total of 19-0 to reach the Final Four. In the semifinals Carolina faced a stiff challenge from the host Santa Clara team. The two teams had played early in the year, with Carolina escaping with a 1-0 victory on a last minute goal by Keller. This game would also be decided by one goal, as second half scores by Cindy Parlow and Robin Confer gave the Heels a 2-1 victory.

That the Tar Heels reclaimed the national title and finished an impressive 25-1 is a testament to UNC Head Coach Anson Dorrance as much as his talented team. Concerned about his team's lackluster play early in the season Dorrance made some bold changes to his lineup in the wake of the Notre Dame loss.

In addition to moving a handful of players to new positions, the team began playing a flat three-woman back line defensively, a strategy that worked magnificently and the Tar Heels have employed ever since.

Following the loss to Notre Dame the Tar Heels powered their way through the final 17 games of the season, claiming their eighth ACC crown by defeating Florida State 7-1. Carolina then went on to win the program's 14th championship in 16 years.

1997 NCAA Championship

North Carolina was once again the best team in the country in 1997 as the Tar Heels finished 27-0-1 on their to another national championship. The Heels faced harsh competition in the final three games of the NCAA tournament, but behind co-national players of the year Cindy Parlow and Robin Confer, Carolina was able to survive a pair of one goal games and defeat the Connecticut Huskies 2-0 to capture the NCAA championship.

In the biggest game of the season Carolina's biggest two stars combined to ensure Carolina would take home the NCAA championship trophy. Junior Cindy Parlow broke the ice by scoring the Heels first goal. Later in the game teammate Robin Confer scored to give the Tar Heels a 2-0 lead.

Those would be the only two scores of the game, as Carolina tied an NCAA record previously held by the 1987 Tar Heels with their 22 shutout of the year. In 28 games, the most any Carolina squad has played in one season, Carolina yielded a paltry eight goals.

Both the quarterfinals and the semifinals had been tough challenges for the Tar Heels. After defeating Wake Forest and Florida by scores of 6-0 and 5-0, Carolina outlasted a determined Harvard squad 1-0.

Santa Clara would push the Heels even further in the semifinals. The Bronco's took a 1-0 lead in the first half, holding it until Carolina's Lorrie Fair found the net in the second half to even the score. The Tar Heels leading scorer on the year Robin Confer came calling to complete the comeback, 2-1. For the season Confer would rack up 20 goals and 22 assists. She also stands alone as the player having participated in the most games for North Carolina, having graced the field in 107 contests from 1994 through 1997.

The Tar Heels lone tie of the season came in a lightning shortened 2-2 affair against Notre Dame in the Notre Dame adidas Lady Footlocker Classic. It was the only mark spoiling Carolina's otherwise perfect record.

North Carolina also added another ACC championship to its lengthy list of accomplishments. The Heels defeated Florida State, Clemson and then Maryland to take the title.

1999 NCAA Championship

The 1999 campaign started in unsettling fashion as North Carolina lost twice in September and stood just 6-2 after its first eight games, the first time UNC had lost twice in the same season since 1985. However ugly the season began, it ended just as beautifully as Carolina outplayed fellow powerhouse Notre Dame for the NCAA championship.

In front of the largest crowd ever to watch a Carolina women's soccer match, a total attendance of 14,410 in San Jose, California, the Tar Heels fought past Notre Dame 2-0. Junior Meredith Florance and senior midfielder Beth Sheppard scored the goals as Carolina got the shutout. Carolina's previous four NCAA titles had also come in shutout victories.

In the semifinals the Tar Heels defeated Penn State 2-0, one of the goals coming off of the booming punt of freshman goalkeeper Jenni Branam, giving the keeper her second assist of the year off one of her lengthy punts from goal. The win was at least in part redemption for a rare home loss handed to the Tar Heels by the Nittany Lions. Penn State had defeated Carolina in Chapel Hill during the Nike/Carolina classic in mid September 3-2. Carolina's other loss during their painfully slow start to the season was a 1-0 loss against Santa Clara played in Durham.

Defense became the signature of the 1999 Carolina team. National Player of the Year Lorrie Fair, along with senior Lindsay Stoecker, keyed the defense. The two seniors also got help from first team All-America player Danielle Borgman.

Over the final 18 games of the season, Carolina allowed only five goals, including only one in the final 13 games. En route, the Tar Heels won their 11th straight ACC championship by defeating Wake Forest 3-0.

The Heels made the final after eliminating Clemson 1-0 in a game that required overtime to determine a winner. Florida State was Carolina's victim in the tournament's opening round, falling to the Tar Heels by a score of 4-1.

2000 NCAA Championship

The 2000 season saw the North Carolina Tar Heels win their 12th successive ACC championship as well as the program's 17th national championship, all despite losing more games than in any season since 1980. The Tar Heels finished the campaign by outlasting UCLA to capture the NCAA championship and finish the season with an 18-3 record.

The championship came on the wings of a strong offensive performance in the final 20 minutes of the second half to defeat UCLA, 2-1. The game was extremely competitive throughout, with strong defensive plays keeping the score knotted at zero going into halftime.

Early in the second half UCLA managed to break the scoreless deadlock off a rebound to give the Bruins a 1-0 lead. Carolina relentlessly put pressure on the UCLA defense with shot after shot, but was not able to get a score. Finally with under 15 minutes left on the clock UNC scored the equalizer as a charging Meredith Florance, UNC's leading scorer on the year, blasted in a tap pass from Alyssa Ramsey to tie the score at one apiece.

With nine minutes to go a Tar Heel corner kick found its way into the net. Leslie Gaston redirected the ball in the box and it caromed off a UCLA defender for an own goal and a 2-1 Carolina lead. The own goal was only the second in women's college cup history, the first eliminating North Carolina in 1995. It would prove to be the game winner, as the game ended 2-1.

The Tar Heels had entered the tournament as the fifth seed, opening up with Wake Forest, one of the three ACC teams that had beaten the Heels, who lost three road games during the season. The Heels avenged the loss by eliminating Wake 5-0. Carolina would need rallies similar to the one used to defeat UCLA to win two of its next three tournament games.

The first was a 2-1 decision over Virginia in the third round, which Carolina followed up by rolling past Connecticut 3-0 in the quarterfinals. The win set up a date with top seeded Notre Dame in the semifinals. Carolina rallied once again, eliminating the top seed with a 2-1 victory.

Entering the 2000 season Carolina had only dropped one game in Atlantic Coast Conference history, but all three of its 2000 losses would be road games in the ACC. The first was a 2-1 defeat at Clemson, followed by a double overtime 3-2 loss against Florida State.

The third ACC defeat came at the hands of Wake Forest, who followed Carolina's Florida State loss by beating the Tar Heels 1-0, the first time Carolina had lost back to back games since 1982. Despite the three conference losses Carolina managed to win the ACC tournament, besting Duke to take the title..
